Pentecost Sunday

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ according to Saint John 14:15-20

‘If you love me, you will keep my commandments. And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate, to be with you for ever. This is the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. You know him, because he abides with you, and he will be in you.

‘I will not leave you orphaned; I am coming to you. In a little while the world will no longer see me, but you will see me; because I live, you also will live. On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

Mother of love, of sorrow and of mercy. pray for us.

May as the Month of Mary: East and West

Roman Catholics have a deep history of honoring the Blessed Virgin Mary during the month of May. This devotion, which developed over the course of centuries in the West, spread and connected to Marian devotions indigenous to the Christian East, leading Catholics all over the world to make May a special time to praise God's Immaculate Mother.

May as the Month of Mary in the West

As early as the 13th century, Latin Catholics began designating May as a special month to honor the Blessed Virgin Mary. Prior to his repose in 1284, King Alphonsus X of Spain, in one of his poems, sings of May as the month of Mary, describing how the people gather round her altar to sing her glories and pray for protection from all harm.

Not long after, the German monk Blessed Henry Suso, O.P., adopted the practice of honoring Mary in a special way during springtime. He would gather flowers, weave them into a crown, and then place it on the statue at Our Lady's altar. On one occasion he was privileged to hear angel choirs joining him in singing Mary's praises, and another time he heard them singing the Magnificat. Similar devotions spread throughout Germany in the succeeding centuries.

By the 18th and 19th centuries, both the Society of Jesus (Jesuits) and the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer (Redemptorists) had distributed devotional literature singling out May as a special time to honor the Queen of Heaven. Public liturgical celebrations became normative throughout Europe, eventually making their way to North America and missionary lands as far as China.

By the 20th century, devotion to Mary in May had become so beloved by Latin Catholic faithful that Pope Pius XII established the Feast of the Queenship of Mary on May 31 in his 1954 encyclical Ad caeli reginam. Though Paul VI would transfer this feast to August for the Novus Ordo missal, it is still celebrated in May by traditional Catholics following the 1962 missal.

May Marian Devotions in the East

The Chaldean Catholic Church, which uses the East Syriac Rite and is headquartered in Baghdad, Iraq, has also adopted the practice of honoring God's Mother in May. Centuries before it re-established communion with Rome, the Chaldeans decreed May 15 as the Feast of Our Lady of the Fields. During this celebration, the faithful supplicate Mary to bring forth a good harvest and spread her protection over families.

Catholics following the Byzantine Rite, known as Greek Catholics, possess a strong tradition of honoring Mary. In light of their Latin brethren's special fervency during May, various Greek Catholic churches have followed suit, blending Latin praxis with their own tradition. One prominent example of this is holding special supplication services to the Blessed Virgin throughout the month. Known as a paraklisis in Greek or moleben in Slavonic, this service is structured like Matins with the intoning of Psalms 142 and 50, the reading of the Gospel, and the chanting of a canon or prayer to the Mother of God. In their most lavish form, molebens may include a full procession in or outside the church and additional blessings, such as sprinkling with holy water or anointing.

The Maronite Catholics of Lebanon, who never formally broke communion with Rome despite centuries of separation due to geographic and political barriers, have a rich tradition of honoring Mary in May that parallels those found among Latin Catholics. While Latin Catholics typically assign Saturday as a special day for Marian devotion, Maronites honor her on Wednesday, as they believe this is the day the Blessed Virgin fell asleep in the Lord. In addition to May, Maronites also set aside the months of August and October to honor the Queen of Heaven. One Maronite prayer to Mary reads as follows: O Mary, Queen of the Mountains and Seas, Queen of our beloved Lebanon, whose glory is given to you, and whom you wished to be your emblem. O Virgin, whose purity rivals the snow of Lebanon, rise in glory like the cedars of Lebanon. We beg you to lay your motherly eyes on all your children and extend your pure arms to bless us. Amen.

Regardless of geographic location, church structure, or rite, Catholics have come to embrace May as a time to pay honor to Mary, the Mother of God and Queen of Heaven. By her prayers and the prayers of all the saints, may we be protected during our time on earth and find eternal joy in the Kingdom of Heaven.
